Telephone Service Here Normal After Strike Is Settled

All Operators Are Back on Jobs At Washington C. H. Exchange -- Few Had Gone Out During Row, However

While many telephone operators are still on strike in various parts of the nation, including the Cincinnati area, all of the Washington C. H. operators were back on the job Friday, and belief was expressed that this was the first point in Ohio where all operators had returned to work.

Twenty of the 29 operators here had remained on the job from the start, and about 10 days ago two of the striking employees went back to the switchboard, leaving only seven off duty.

Meandering Along the Main Stem

By WASH FAYETTE

I understand a number of residents of this community are planning to motor to Holland, Michigan, to attend the annual tulip festival staged in Holland city, on May 14 to 17, inclusive.

The tulip gardens are located just outside of the city and are very extensive.

Then there is "tulip drive" through the city proper. This consists of a route several miles in extent where property owners have placed tulips in the grass-plots so that one may enjoy the gorgeous bloom for miles.

Floodlights illuminate some of the beds at night, and there are old Dutch mill observation towers located at vantage points so that visitors, who flock to the city by the thousands, may obtain a view of the huge gardens from there.

During the tulip festival Dutch costumes are worn by large numbers of citizens, including the business and professional men, and a wide range of entertainment for the visitors.

Sugar is still very much in demand.

This was proven in a most emphatic way at a public sale in Bloomingburg a few days ago, when a 25 pound bag of granulated sugar was offered to the highest bidder.

Bidding started instantly by several persons.

Up and went the price until the final bid was $13 for the bag, or a little matter of 52 cents per pound, while the present price of sugar is around 50 cents for a five pound bag, or at the rate of $2.50 for 25 pounds.

Archaeologist Resumes Hunt

CINCINNATI, May 9—(P)—Dr. Carl W. Blegen, University of Cincinnati archaeologist, sails for Greece next week, to resume the war-interrupted project of digging into the palace of King Nestor, the monarch who reigned during the Trojan war and accompanied Agamemnon to Troy.

Dr. and Mrs. Blegen made test excavations at the site of Nestor's palace at Pylos, in southwest Greece, in 1939. They had located an archive room when war made further excavations impossible.

Dr. Blegen, who headed U. C.'s seven archaeological expeditions to ancient Troy in the 1930's, said the Grecian land which he plans to dig up is private property and must be acquired before excavations can be resumed. An expedition will be organized and digging will begin "as soon as conditions permit," he said today.

Man Pushes Co-ed In Front of Train

NEW YORK, May 9—(P)—A New York University coed was thrown in front of an approaching subway train today by a man but onlookers rescued her while other witnesses beat her attacker, police reported.

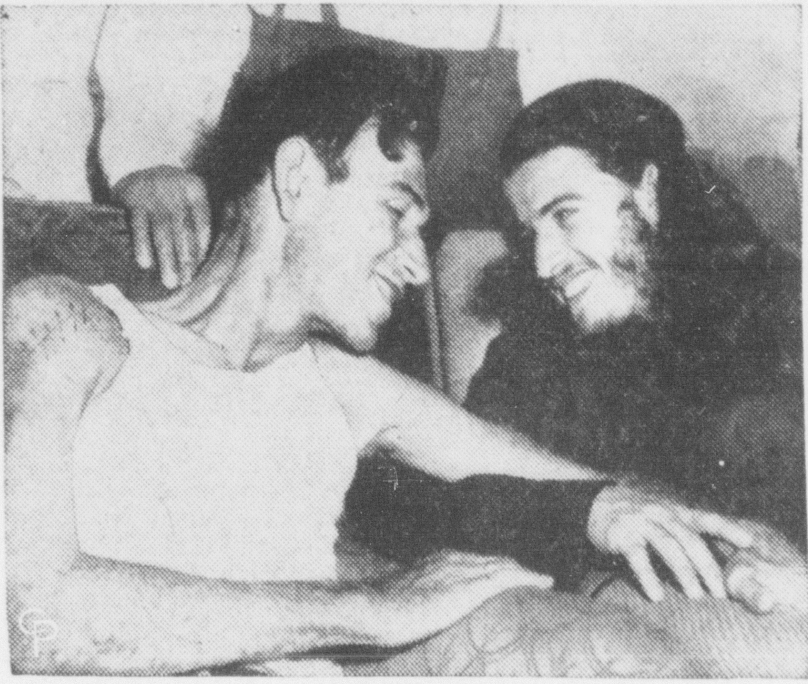

The girl was identified as Berntha Pataky, 21, of Brooklyn, a senior at the university.

Police said she was standing on a station platform talking with another student when a man seized her and hurled her head first to the tracks.

Miss Pataky was taken to Beekman Street Hospital suffering from head injuries.

Production Hits Record

CLEVELAND, May 9—(P)—Steel operations hit a record capacity in 1947's first quarter, peaking at 93 percent of producing nearly 21,000,000 tons of ingots and steel for casting, the monthly business review of the fourth federal reserve district noted today.

IN PALM SPRINGS, CAL., Avak Hagopalin (right), faith healer from Iran, gets acquainted with Vaughn Arakelian, 37, who has been subject to epileptic fits since he was 10 years old. A goldsmith turned healer, Avak will attempt to cure Arakelian's affliction, on which the Californian's father, a wealthy retired grape king, has already spent $250,000 in unsuccessful treatments. Cincinnati Hotel Burns -- All Saved

CINCINNATI, May 9—(P)—

While flames roared up the six-floor elevator shaft of the Columbia Hotel for men in downtown Cincinnati last night, about 100 guests made an orderly escape to safety down smoke-filled stairways or by fire escapes.

No one was injured in the blaze which destroyed the roof of the 220-room hotel building. Desk Clerk Herbert Dawson rushed from a second-floor room to find the stairway jammed with men "fighting their way down" and yelled to them: "keep your heads!" The men "quieted down and descended in orderly fashion," Dawson said.

William Neice, 81-year-old fifth floor resident, leaned from his window during the fire, making no attempt to flee. He didn't want to leave, but two husky firemen carried him down an extension ladder. Neice told them, the firemen said "I was sure the firemen were going to put the fire out."

The workers were members of the American Union of Telephone Workers whose 20,000 members from coast to coast were slated to begin returning to work at 6 A. M. in the various time zones across the country, but remained "pledged to honor the picket lines of any affiliated union."

This policy was stated by the AUTW executive board, which last night approved a wage agreement calling for weekly increases generally ranging from $2 to $4. The agreement had been reached in Washington, D. C., earlier in the way by union negotiators and representatives of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., parent organization of the Bell system.

In Washington, officials of the National Federation of Telephone Workers, which called the April 7 strike, estimated that about 250,000 of the 287,000 members of NFWT unions who walked out still were on strike. About 50,000 workers not affiliated with the NFWT, but who had joined the strike, have returned to work under wage agreements.

Most of the workers still on strike belong to regional unions, which this week began negotiations with various bell system companies following termination of NFWT efforts to reach a national settlement.

Canton Gas Fire Rages

CANTON, May 9—(P)—An estimated million cubic feet of gas were destroyed by fire yesterday in a blaze near Canton battled for five hours by fire departments from several area communities.

Preacher, 61, Weds Girl, 14; Says Marriage Is 'God's Will'

WINCHESTER, Tenn., May 9—(P)—A 61-year-old farmer-preacher said today that his marriage to a 14-year-old school girl was "God's will" and "I love to do God's will regardless of men."

R. S. Nolt, who is being held in jail here under $6,000 bond on charges of abduction and violating the age of consent brought by the girl's father, told reporters in the presence of Sheriff Jim Smith that his bride had turned against him.

"She has thwarted God's will," he cried, "and one of these days she's going to be sorry."

"Time and time again that woman swore she would die by my side. Her mammy and daddy just over-persuaded her."

The girl, Aline Rolman, returned to her parents after Nolt was arrested. He was bound over to the grand jury, which next meets in August, at a preliminary hearing yesterday.

Aline testified at the hearing that she and Nolt first had sexual relations last October—when

NEW YORK, May 9—(P)—Stan Musial, slugging first-baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, was found by a blood count today to be suffering with acute appendicitis and probably will be forced to undergo an operation immediately.

300 Youngsters Here Celebrate May Day at Play

The sun came out for a few minutes at 4:30 P. M. Thursday after a long, cold day as almost 300 restless children waited in front of the Gardner Park press box for announcement of the winning schools in the city's annual May Day and Child Health Day contests.

On the edge of the crowd, two little boys were pushing each other, one shouting "Eastside!" the other "Central!" The first gave a long shriek as A. B. Murray, superintendent of schools, announced that Eastside had won the trophy for having the most points in the day-long May Day field events.

Started in Morning At 9:30 A. M., they started from the high school led by the high school band, under the direction of William Clift, marched to Gardner Park. After the flag-raising, the "Star Spangled Banner," and a welcome address by Supt. Murray, the Central fourth, and sixth grade girls gave a May Day pole dance and the Cherry Hill girls did a Virginia Reel.

Following these preliminaries, fourth, fifth and sixth grade boys

Death Stalked In Mountains After Killing

GRANTS PASS, Ore., May 9—(P)—

A deadly stalking game today went into its third day in the tangled, mountain reaches west of here—one of the nation's last great wildernesses.

Object of the hunt over high, twisting trails was a graying but clear-eyed prospector, Jack Mahoney, agile and a crack shot despite his 65 years. Robert Fox, 40, "gentleman guide" ambushed on the fringe of the wilds Tuesday, left a note naming Mahoney as his assailant.

Mahoney, who long had been at odds with Fox disappeared into the rectangular block of wilderness, roughly 100 miles long and 60 miles wide, in this southwestern corner of Oregon. Here rise the timbered Siskiyou mountains, slashed by canyons and unpenetrated by railroads, highways or telephone lines. Travel is by foot, by horse or occasionally between rapids—by boat.

Rifled mountaineers of the Mule Creek County northwest of here, where Fox was slain, returned to their homes yesterday after being evacuated for fear the slayer might strike again. Twenty policemen were along, but they were unfamiliar with the country. Mahoney, who had roamed it for years, knew every canyon.

Yeggs Brash, But Escape

CINCINNATI, May 9—(P)—With a cheery "it's OK fellow, we're just working here," safe crackers dismissed a curious passerby early today and continued their larceny, escaping with at least $150 in cash and causing an estimated $1,500 damage to two safes.

Arthur Kohler, 30, the passerby, called police immediately but the men escaped as four squad cars of cops rushed them.

The safecrackers had helped themselves to brandy in one of the basements and had sprayed tobacco juice around the safe there and one at the Progress Building & Loan Company nearby, the police reported.

Cat Under Hood Scares Motorist

COLUMBUS, May 9—(P)—Harold Bryan of Logan stepped in his 1947 automobile parked in downtown Columbus and was greeted by a "horrible noise" from under the hood.

The noise continued even after he left the machine so patrolmen Tony Sylvester and Paul Lyons looked inside.

They found a stray cat and guessed it had crawled in beside the engine for warmth. Badly cut but still in possession of at least one of its nine lives, the cat was taken to an animal shelter for treatment.

House Displays Defiance In Greek Aid Plan Vote

Mercury Drops To 26 Degrees; Fruit Is Hit

Damage Is Feared From Heavy Freeze Throughout Area

Fruit in this area is believed to have suffered heavily from the low temperature of Thursday night, following that of Wednesday night. The mercury tumbled to 26 during Thursday night, with result that the heavy freeze did extensive damage generally.

The low Wednesday night was 27, but the cold did not last as long as it did Thursday night.

Vegetation generally, which usually withstands considerable freezing in the early spring, shows effects of the two freezes, and some trees will lose most of their newly formed leaves, while others will show effects of the damage for sometime to come.

Much of the fruit was in blossom and damage was not as extensive as it would have been had the fruit been formed. However pears, apples, cherries and plums are believed to have suffered severely.

The maximum Thursday was 53 degrees, and by 8 A. M. Friday the mercury had mounted to 36 degrees and a pronounced rise in temperature was indicated for the day with not such a low temperature expected Friday night.

Roosevelt Files Wanted for Probe

WASHINGTON, May 9—(P)—Senate war investigators on the trail of an Arabian oil deal debated today whether to open up Franklin D. Roosevelt's files with a subpoena or rely on President Truman to obtain the information they want.

The late president's executors made it plain they will not voluntarily permit an unrestricted search of his papers. Chairman Brewster (R-Me.) told newsmen he will discuss with Burton K. Wheeler, the committee's special counsel, whether to be satisfied with documents which Mr. Truman has told the executors to provide.

As an alternative, Brewster said, the committee could issue a subpoena requiring the Roosevelt estate to give investigators full access to the files. They are packed in 165 cases weighing 40 to 50 tons.

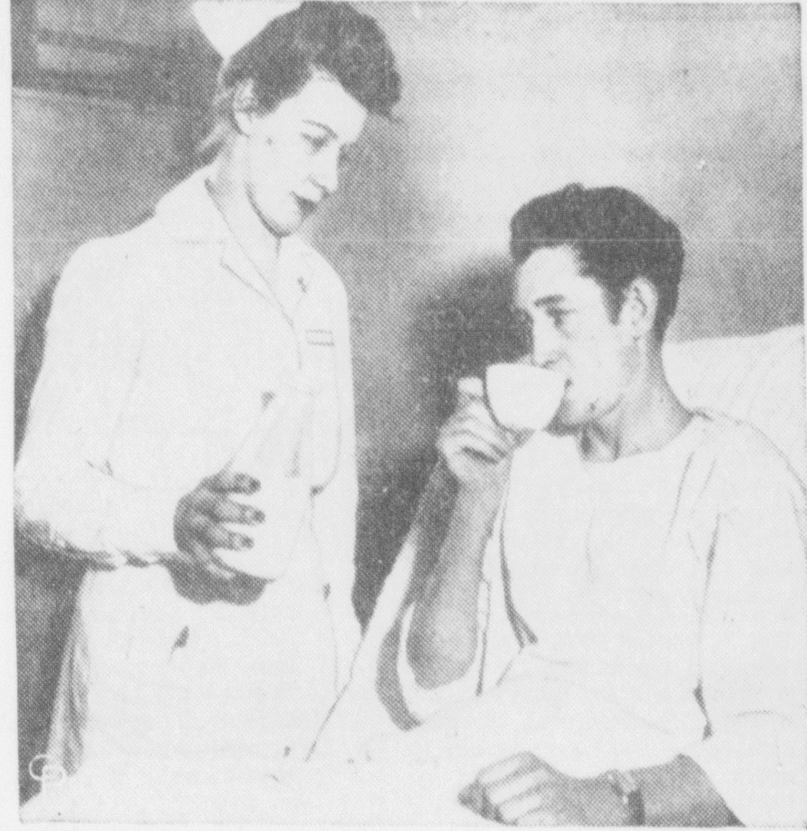

Wilmington Bank Goes into Bancchio

COLUMBUS, May 9—(P)—President James R. Coppins of Bancchio Corp., Columbus, announced today purchase of a controlling interest in the First National Bank of Wilmington, bringing to 20 Bancchio's affiliates in Central and Southern Ohio.

Officers and directors of the Wilmington bank will continue its operation for the time being, the announcement said.

Crash Kills Two

COLUMBUS, May 9—(P)—Howard Jaynes, 30, and Arthur E. Rees, 19, both of Columbus, were killed early today in the crash of their automobile into a bridge on route 33 over Little Walnut Creek south of nearby Canal Winchester.

NURSE CLAUDIA SERGEANT gives milk to Jack Park of Orem, Utah, at Chicago's Illinois Research hospital, marking the first time 21-year-old Jack has eaten in 16 years. At the age of four, Park ate lye and since that time has been fed via a tube in his stomach. A recent operation has opened his throat passage. (International)

Four Peace Treaties Approved By Foreign Relations Committee

WASHINGTON, May 9—(P)—The senate foreign relations committee voted unanimously approval of peace treaties with Italy, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich.) announced approval of resolutions to ratify the treaties after what he said was "long discussion" of their terms by the committee. He said no reservations were offered by members.

President Truman has urged speedy senate ratification, which requires two-thirds approval of those voting, as a matter "vital" to American foreign policy.

Opposition to the agreements has centered on the Italian pact, with critics contending that a clause demilitarizing that country would leave it open to the same sort of Communist infiltration Mr. Truman has said he wants to prevent in Greece and Turkey.

Nothing this indirectly, Mr. Truman said in a letter to Marshall,

Bikini Test Ships Are Still Unsafe

WASHINGTON, May 9—(P)—Ten months after the Bikini atom bomb tests, the target ships still are "unsafe for permanent occupancy."

The navy so reported today in announcing that most of the big vessels which survived the twin blasts last year will be towed without crews to Hawaii and the west coast this summer for study.

Officials emphasized, however, that the heavy radioactive contamination will not endanger the populations of either Pearl Harbor, San Francisco, or Bremerton, Wash., where the studies will be carried on.

Jane Gets $375,000 She Made in Movies

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., May 9—(P)—Just 21, actress Jane Withers has come into a $375,000 fortune which she herself earned.

The former juvenile star received deeds to the family home yesterday from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Withers. The home is valued at $250,000, and with it went other real estate worth $75,000, and $10,000 in annuities.

Columbus Tax Suit Cold-Shouldered

COLUMBUS, May 9—(P)—Mayor James A. Rhodes' idea to sue the state government for recovery of $7,084,000 taxes paid by Columbus citizens received a cold reception at the state house today.

State Finance Director H. D. Defenbacher remarked, "it's so fantastic that it's not worth comment."

Chairman Paul H. Ballard of the house finance committee commented: "I didn't know it was illegal for the state to impose state-wide taxes and distribute them under authority of law."

Mayor Rhodes, questioning the state's right to pile up a surplus of $161,000,000 while municipalities were sorely pressed for operating funds, has asked his legal adviser to ascertain if the city could sue for 44 percent of the surplus. Columbus has 4.4 percent of the state's population.

State house observers said there was a question whether the city even could sue the state. Although the constitution authorizes suits against the state, the legislature never has specified in what manner the actions might be brought.

Margaret Truman Is To Go on Tour

NEW YORK, May 9—(P)—A concert tour leading into the southwest will begin late this month for Margaret Truman, daughter of the president, who recently made her radio debut in Detroit.

Mrs. Margaret Strickler, Miss Truman's teacher, said last night the schedule included appearances in Pittsburgh May 20, Cleveland May 22, Dallas May 25, Fort Worth May 26, Amarillo, Texas, May 28, and Oklahoma City May 30, with possibly two additional concerts early in June.

White Slave Charges Brings Guilty Plea

WHEELING, W. Va., May 9—(P)—Harold Jacob Lerch, 30, of Canton, O., yesterday pleaded guilty on two federal indictments charging interstate transportation of women for immoral purposes.

Judgment on Lerch's plea was deferred by Judge William E. Baker, who held three other cases charging white slavery in abeyance until today so he could hear defense motions to dismiss charges.

Ban on Sending Combat Troops Is Turned Down

Other Major Issues Faced by Congress In Day's Session

WASHINGTON, May 9—(P)—The house rejected today a proposal to bar sending of American "combat troops" to Greece and Turkey as part of the administration's $400,000,000 program to curb Communism in southeastern Europe.

Defeat of the proposed ban was on a tellers tally, 122 to 70.

A few seconds later, by voice vote, the house licked an attempt to limit the size of the military missions to be sent to the two countries to 100 men.

Rep. Mervyn (R-NH) shouted on the house floor today that if Russia believes the administration's $400,000,000 Greek-Turkish aid measure "to be a declaration of war, then let them make the most of it."

UNSCATHED IN HOUSE

The Greek-Turkish aid program emerged unscathed today from its baptism of fire on the house floor.

Its supporters are weary but confident that they have the votes to ward off continuing attacks upon the measure designed to bolster the two Mediterranean countries against Communistic pressures.

Their confidence was due to be put to the test today on several major amendments. Whether a vote on final passage would come before nightfall was in doubt.

But behind the bill was one attempt to kill it outright—a move which went down to defeat by a standing vote of 127 to 37.

UN Proposal Rejected

Rejected, also, were two preliminary attempts to give the United Nations a say on southeastern Europe's problems.

Rep. Helen Gahagan Douglas (D-Calif.) sought unsuccessfully to postpone any aid for Turkey for a year to give the U.N. a chance to look into the situation.

Rep. Javits (R-NY) tried in vain to have congress instruct President Truman to lay the Greek-Turkish problem before the U. N. while carrying out the assistance contemplated in the bill.

The house similarly turned thumbs down on Mrs. Douglas' demand that it write into the measure a specific prohibition against sending either Turkey or Greece atomic weapons or secrets. Opponents of that ban said existing law already prohibits any such action.

As it concluded its third full day of intense debate to meet at 10 A. M. (EST) today, the house was still arguing the merits of limiting the size of military missions to be sent to the two countries.

Universal Training

Republican leaders threw up a road block today against action this year on President Truman's plea for universal training legislation.

Senator Taft of Ohio, chairman of the GOP policy committee, told a reporter he doubts very much that congress would be able to take up such a controversial subject and still meet the July 31 adjournment deadline on which he has been insisting.

"There are many other matters of more pressing importance that will take up our full time," the Ohio senator said.

An estimate by Senator Lucas (D-Ill.) that the kind of universal military training program the army wants would cost $1,486,000,000 annually gave economy-minded Republicans another reason for putting off action at this time.

Parole Clerk Dies After 33 Years Service

COLUMBUS, May 9—(P)—Daniel J. Bonzo, 60, parole and record clerk at Ohio Penitentiary, died suddenly at his home early today.

For a third of a century Bonzo worked with records of commitments and discharges and prepared case histories of inmates to appear at parole hearings. Records of an estimated 100,000 prisoners were in his custody.

In The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—How do the U. S. supreme court's nine justices arrive at their opinions? Here's how.

You've sued Smith in the lower federal courts and lost. You still can appeal to the supreme court, the last resort.

Through your lawyer you file a petition there, asking that your case be heard. Smith's lawyer files a petition saying it shouldn't be heard.

Copies of the two petitions go to each of the nine justices. They read them.

Every Saturday the justices meet behind thick, closed doors to consider a number of things.

One Saturday, having read the petitions in your case, they meet and decide whether they'll hear it. Suppose they decide they will.

Then your lawyer files a brief, giving all the arguments for you, and Smith's lawyer files a brief, giving all the arguments for him.

On an agreed-upon day the two lawyers go into open court and argue the case before the justices. Each lawyer gets one hour to talk.

When the justices meet again in closed session the following Saturday, or some other Saturday, they discuss the arguments in your case.

Then they vote for you or against you. Suppose five, a majority, are for you, and four, a minority, against you. (Since a supreme court decision is final, having a majority on your side means you win the suit, although you've lost in the lower courts.)

The five on the majority side will agree to let one of them—say Justice Murphy—write the majority opinion.

The four on the minority side will agree to let one of them—say Justice Black—write the minority opinion.

Murphy and Black write their opinions which are distributed to all the other justices.

Some, or all, of the justices on Murphy's side, although agreeing with him, may want to say some things he didn't say in his opinion.

Then they will write separate, concurring opinions.

Some, or all, of the justices on Black's side, although agreeing with him generally, may want to say some things he didn't say in his opinion.

They will write separate, dissenting opinions.

When the justices have finished writing, exchanging, reading and, finally in conference, discussing these opinions, they are printed by a government printer in the basement of the supreme court building.

Then at noon on a Monday—Monday is opinion day—the justices file into open court and read their opinions.

But when do the justices get time—since a number of opinions are handed down on Monday—for all the writing and looking up of law necessary to produce well-reasoned opinions?

The justices listen to arguments from noon till 4:30 P. M. Mondays through Friday two weeks in a row. Then for two weeks they don't appear in court at all except on Monday to deliver opinions.

So they have two full weeks a month for writing, thinking, looking up law and, as mentioned, they meet on Saturdays to exchange ideas. Each justice has a law clerk to help him.

Child Killed by Car

EAST LIVERPOOL, May 9—(AP)—An automobile yesterday struck and killed three-year-old John Toft, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril E. Toft, while he was playing.

A baby was born in a hospital in continental United States on the average of every 15 seconds during 1946.

JUST A FRIENDLY CHAT

Doctor Luke in Acts 1:25 says, "Judas by transgression fell, that he might go to his OWN PLACE." And this is true of every man woman and child. We each go to our own place and that place is chosen by each individual by the life he lives—his life is the decisive agent. THE SUBJECT OF HELL is one from which preachers instinctively shrink, and which has created a whirlpool of endless controversy (because man's mind so have been placed against God's say so's.) The subject of HELL as revealed in the Bible makes the flesh creep on the holiest of Saints, and is almost obsolete in religious circles and from the pulpit. Hell is heard of on the street corners and in the taverns more often than any other place (little realizing they are headed for the same place they speak of). We are living in an age when men claim to have outgrown the doctrine of a REAL LITERAL HELL. The worldly wise and heavenly foolish today make fun of us old fashioned preachers who still believe in and preach the doctrine of eternal punishment. College professors and liberals in the pulpits and out, will scoff and laugh at us who believe in the doctrine of HELL FIRE AND BRIMSTONE. But friends let me tell you that THE DENIAL OF HELL IS NOTHING MORE NOR LESS THAN WHITE-WASHED INFIDELITY AND DISBELIEF IN GOD'S HOLY WORD.

Stop-Look-Listen!

The sound advice on traffic safety given by Sgt. Umpleby of the Ohio Highway Patrol at the Rotary Club meeting this week in which he advocated that both motor car drivers and pedestrians apply the "Golden Rule" where traffic is concerned more than they have been doing, brings to mind the need for all of us every so often to let our thoughts dwell on accident figures.

In every locality as well as here in Washington C. H. and Fayette County there is need for a little more care, a little more thoughtfulness and a little more concentration on our tasks at hand to cut down accidents no matter what we are doing, whether it be driving an automobile or doing housework.

Last year in this country more than 100,000 persons died in accidents, many of them avoidable. The economic cost as reflected in loss of pay, medical expenses and property damage has been estimated at five billion, 600 million dollars. There is no way to compute the human suffering, broken homes and sorrowing lives left in the wake of such calamities.

Safety councils organized on local as well as national scales are tangible efforts to make people take a little more time to the task at hand, develop greater caution. But in the last analysis, each individual must practise the "Stop! Look! Listen!" technique himself. He should also see, as far as he can, that minors and elders under his care learn to do likewise.

Trimming Sails

The theory that excessive business profits are the primary reason for high prices is a dangerous half-truth. It is true that certain types of manufacturing business, producing consumer goods, have shown large earnings. In certain cases this was obviously due in part to great demand caused by five years of shortages and scarcities. At the present time, the volume of sales at the retail level is on the decline.

Profits in certain basic lines—such as motors, steel, coal, etc.—have been moderate, despite the high level of demand. Extremely high labor costs, coupled with low worker productivity, have prevented anything resembling excessive profits in these fields. It thus becomes extremely difficult to see how substantial price decreases can be effected without a sharp rise in work done per man hour. To this extent, the industrial worker himself holds the key to the price problem.

The most encouraging sign is that there have been few late price increases of moment, and in a number of lines there have been small declines. Much of the credit for this must be given to retail industry which has been figuring an aggressive battle in behalf of the consumer. The retailer is caught between high wholesale costs on the one hand and increasing consumer resistance on the other, and he knows better than anyone else the problems and needs of the buying public. He is convinced that qualities must be improved, and that every possible step be taken to bring prices down. He can't control inflation—but he is do-

A Letter from Washington

By Jane Eads

WASHINGTON—Experts from the engineering division of the District of Columbia Motor Vehicle Bureau are in a huddle over the town's muddled parking signs.

A corps of field men are now making an investigation of the District's 75,000 signs, put up over a period of 22 years.

"Illegible, illegal and illogical," Traffic Director George E. Keneipp calls them.

Wallace L. Braun, deputy director in charge of traffic engineering of the Department of Vehicles and Traffic, says the signs are in keeping with national standards.

The national standards, he points out, were set by such outfits as the Institute of Traffic, the American Association of State Highways, the American Standards Association and representatives from other agencies such as the Public Roads Administration.

"This sounds impressive," says Braun, "but you're bound to get some inconsistencies over the years."

Braun says, however, that every motorist in the District knows what the signs mean, or should know, after all.

For instance, if you see a couple of signs like the following on the same post, you should know just what you can and what you can not do:

No Parking
7 to 9:30 A. M.
No Standing
7:30 to 9 A. M.
and
4 to 6:30 P. M.

One hour parking
—O—
No Parking on this side
2 A. M.
9:30 A. M.

For instance: You can't pull up and park from 7 to 9:30 A. M., but from 9:30 A. M. till 4 P. M. you can park for an hour.

You can stand, unload or load from 7 A. M. to 7:30 and after 9 A. M. until 4 P. M. You can't stand, load, or unload from 7:30 until 9 A. M. It's perfectly clear

A married woman signs her letter "Helen Jay Scott." If she is in doubt as to whether or not the person to whom she is writing is acquainted with her married name, she writes underneath this signature, in parenthesis, (Mrs. Guy Scott).

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday child has originality and should cultivate his or her creative ability. You are amusing and entertaining, popular among your friends and associates, and have definite likes and dislikes. You should marry young, and your home life will bring you much happiness. The day will not be too good. There may be confusion, repression, bickering. However there also will be better understanding of things. During your next year your life will proceed on a fairly even keel, some good fortune eventuating. Beware, however, of a deceptive element in love or domestic matters. Expedite your business. Born today a child will be tactful, diplomatic, patient, persistent, courageous, hard-working, practical, self-reliant, inventive—a good organizer and generally fortunate, in spite of liability to some deception in love.

The National Guard

One of George Washington's most famous statements was this: "To be prepared for war is one of the most effectual ways of preserving peace."

That should be remembered in the present troubled world. And it has an especial significance now that an aggressive effort is being made to build up the National Guard to its authorized strength of 682,000 men.

The guard is a volunteer, civilian-soldier organization, and it has a long and distinguished record of service. It provides a priceless nucleus of trained men upon which an effective fighting force can be built in time of war. Units of the guard were among the first to see action in the last conflict, and they fought gallant delaying actions while we worked against time to create a gigantic army. And war is not the only emergency which the guard is called upon to meet. In every great disaster, from the San Francisco fire of 1906 to the ghastly explosion at Texas City a short time ago, the guard has done a superb job as a protector of life and property.

To young men, the guard organization, offers an opportunity to learn new skills, to improve old ones, and to acquire experience in organization and leadership. Each member draws a full day's regular army pay for two hours of spare-time training a week, and for each 15 days of field training a year. To the community, the guard is a proud local asset. It represents public service of the highest order.

There's a Difference

"I simply obeyed Hitler." This excuse was offered by Field Marshall Erhard Milch, convicted of war crimes. The three American judges who heard his case demolished this argument when they replied, "If Germany had won the war, persons like Milch would have been hailed as geniuses, and the defendant would now be elbowing his way into the front row, claiming to have successfully and victoriously carried out Hitler's orders and policies."

Military obedience is one thing. Crime is another. Even a Nazi general should know the difference. If any did not, they do now. History admires heroes who stand their ground with "And if I perish, I perish."

Other things come and go, but love and politics are eternal.

Watch for Cancer Signs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WE are making real progress in cancer control and can say today with great confidence that early cancer is curable.

But in order to cure cancer, it must be discovered early. Although cancer has been studied by many scientists for many years and is the object of much of today's research, it is still true that the only successful way of treating it is to remove or destroy the cancerous tissue completely.

In One Place

The best chance of doing this is while the cancer is all in one place, before metastasis occurs. We say a cancer has metastasized when some of the cancer cells have been carried by blood or lymph to other parts of the body to set up new cancers in these locations.

This does not usually occur in the early stages of the disease and that is why we say early cancer is curable.

Take breast cancer for example. According to Dr. Eugene P.endergrass of Pennsylvania, the patient himself is the first line of defense against breast cancer. It is her job to watch for those signs of cancer which can be seen or felt, such as a lump in the breast, and to consult a doctor immediately if she notes any of them. Whether or not a woman has signs or evidence of cancer she should have an examination made by her doctor regularly every six months.

It is suggested by Dr. Pendergrass that any woman past 35 years of age should examine her breasts for cancer signs once a month. These signs include a lump in the breast, any deformity of the breast, such as attachment of the skin to the tissues underneath. This causes a slight depression of the skin. Other signs are retraction or pulling-in of the nipple, bleeding or discoloration of the nipple, and enlargement of the lymph glands in the armpit.

Because many of these signs may indicate some condition other than cancer, a woman should not be overcome with fear if one of them is discovered. In fact, no one should fear cancer but rather remember that, if the condition is diagnosed early enough, it can be cured. However, lack of fear should not mean carelessness or keep patients from consulting the doctor at once if suspicious signs are present.

Only the physician can make an accurate diagnosis. If the condition is not cancerous the patient's mind will be put at rest. If it is cancerous, no time will be lost in securing proper treatment.

Pain, as a rule, is either a symptom of late cancer or of some other abnormal condition. If a woman has a lump in her breast, she should not wait until pain develops to have an examination made. By then it may be too late.

Building Halted By High Prices

NEW YORK, May 9—(AP)—More than 20,000 construction workers, many of them in Manhattan, were without jobs today because of the shelving of multi-family building projects due to increased construction costs, building experts reported.

With costs twice what they were before the war, estimates placed the amount of multi-family construction put on the deferred list at from $75,000,000 to $100,000,000.

After the field men come back, something will be done. Director Keneipp lists some of the points governing his proposed sign clarification program:

All new signs will be of uniform size with red letters on a white ground to indicate no parking at any time, and green letters on a white ground for limited parking areas.

Signs will be of uniform height—all seven feet from the ground. No signs will be fixed to trees. Surveyors will cover the District thoroughly, removing signs with conflicting directions.

SYNOPSIS

The recent marriage of Bill Arden, serious young lawyer, to vivacious Diane Tarrell, was viewed with misgiving by the more conservative members of Grandharbor society. Bill belonged to one of the town's oldest families, while Diane's father, wealthy J. Emmet Tarrell, and Paula, her step-mother, were comparative newcomers with little or no background. It was rumored, too, that J. Emmet had come by his huge fortune rather questionably. Attractive Page Winston, who had been in love with Bill since childhood, managed to hide her heartbreak from all but Rufus Kent, Bill's former roommate at Harvard, who had recently come to Grandharbor to work on The Post. Diane was ideally happy, despite the fact that most of Bill's evenings had to be devoted to the Staples case which he was preparing for trial. It was his big step-mother, and if handled successfully might gain him a junior partnership. However, he agreed to take a night off to entertain a few of their friends, among them, Page and Rufus.

CHAPTER SEVEN

BILL AND Diane came back, just then, and Rufus sprang up to assist them in placing the projector and the screen. Under the bustle and arguments of preparation Page had an opportunity to take stock of the last few moments.

As before had Rufus spoken to her in that tone. Of caring. She'd thought, when she thought about it, that he'd sought her out simply because he knew no other girls in Grandharbor. But perhaps there was something more—and if there was, why not encourage it? It might end this awful vindictiveness in her heart.

He was calling to her. "Come along, Page, and get a front seat!"

Her color deeper for her secret thought, she took a seat in the front and only row of chairs Rufus had arranged. She laughed with the others when the first pictures showed upside down, when Ross asked if the honey stuff in the film had been censored, when Danny yawned, audibly. She exclaimed with the others over the lovely vistas captured by the camera and reproduced in color on the silver sheet before them. Bill was in the foreground of some of the pictures, Diane in others. "But when do we see the two of you together?" demanded Danny. "I'm waiting for that!"

"You'll wait," Diane retorted. "Our private lives belong to us."

After the pictures they sat around the dinette table and drank coffee and ate sandwiches.

The light, half-rude banter went on. Presently Lois suggested they all go to Guiseppi's. Danny declared himself in favor of that; Wilma and Ross echoed him. But Diane shook her head. "The rest of you go along. I'm tucked out. If you think it's easy to make sandwiches—"

"Di, you're folding up on us?" Danny charged. "What'll we say to Guiseppi himself when he asks us where is the little blond Signorina Tarrell, the life of his place?" There was reminiscence in their laughter, in Diane's, for a moment. Then her mouth took on a little stubborn line. "Oh, I'll go with you sometime!"

"Promise or a threat?" demanded Danny.

"Take it as you like! Now get out!"

Rufus had declined rather bluntly their suggestion that he and Page go to Guiseppi's with them. "Did you want to go?" he asked Page as they walked away from the apartment house. He added before she could answer, "Well go some other evening—the two of us."

Her heart beat faster. There were only four blocks to walk and in them, somehow, she must make him know—well, at least that he was helping her, that she was grateful to him!

She drew a little breath. "I'm really terribly ashamed—about that crack I gave Diane. I deserved just what you said to me."

He looked down at her searchingly. "You're an honest gal with yourself, aren't you?" He took hold of her arm and drew her closer so that they walked in almost a single stride.

But she wasn't that and for a moment Page shrank from this role she had set herself to play. In the next she went on, hurrying her words, giving them the sound of frank confession. "Rufus, it wasn't retaliation, or—or jealousy that made me say it. It was—suddenly I realized how stupid Danny and Ross really are, and Lois and Wilma. Oh, I'm like them, I suppose. I play around with them, sometimes, and do the same things and say the same things and think we're awfully clever and all that, but—well, it struck me that Diane might be begun differently! You see Bill hates that sort of thing!"

"Must Diane go all the way to him?" Rufus asked, dryly.

Page had expected him to agree with her. She said, quickly, "You were bored yourself! You must have been!"

"If I can always find something or someone to interest me in any bunch."

"Me at the wedding," she thought, miserably. "And tonight watching me meet Bill!" Or had it been Diane, tonight? She asked: "Who was it tonight?"

"Young Mrs. Arden. I was figuring out what about her had caught old sobersides Bill! Seems darn funny!"

Page jerked her arm from his hold. "If you're teasing me, you're cruel," she said, brokenly.

He took hold of her shoulder and wheeled her around so that she faced him. "Maybe I am! But, Page, I want to see you let Bill go, once and for all! He's married to Diane. It's a game and she won and you lost and it's all over. It's none of your business now what happens to Bill. What Diane does. Forget it!"

He spoke roughly, but Page heard in his voice the tone he had used before. She caught the lapel of his coat. She wanted childishly to put her face against it.

Rufus closed his hand over hers. "Do that, Page, and you and I might get somewhere—if you're interested!"

A car was approaching, its headlights picking them out. Page stepped back from him. "I will," she said, shakily.

Rufus pulled her arm through his again. "Sounded like the marriage ceremony itself, didn't it?"

"Di, a lot of us are driving out to Greenwood," said Lois over the telephone. "Can't you come along?"

"Not tonight. Bill's working."

"I didn't mean—Say, Di, we're beginning to think—"

Diane dropped the receiver in its cradle. She knew, without hearing Lois to the end, what she was going to say.

As she came out of the bedroom Bill looked up, frowning, from the papers he had spread on the dinette table. "Can't your friends call you during the day?"

"I'll tell them. Sorry you were disturbed."

A tightness in her tone brought his glance to her again. He said more amiably: "This won't go on much longer. Di. The case ought to go to trial in a month. Got a good book to read?"

"She answered over her shoulder, 'Thrilling.'"

But she let her book remain on the living room floor where it had fallen when she sprang up to answer the telephone. She stood quite still in the middle of the room, her hands hard together.

For awhile she had liked to sit curled up in the big chair and read while Bill was working. There was always ahead the moment when, his papers put away, he'd come to her, draw her up into his arms.

"Talk to me, darling, and make me forget collusion and conspiracy." When she would cuddle into his hold, tell of little things which had happened during the day, elaborating on them to amuse him.

But, lately, he had not asked her; evidently he'd wanted to go on thinking of collusion and conspiracy.

It had been Diane's suggestion that he use the dinette table, when he found his desk in the bedroom too small for his work. Bill had been very appreciative of her cooperation.

"It's hard on you, I know. Di, to have me tied up like this case will mean as much to you as to me!"

She made herself remember it now, over rebellion stirring in her breast. Dean, Meadows and Arden, the law firm would be. Someday Bill would be a judge. Judge William Arden. Instinctively she looked over her shoulder and up at the portrait of the first Judge William Arden, which hung, now, over the fireplace. She thought: "Bill will look like him, someday; grave and very, very judicial."

What would she be to him then? She loosened her hands, put them against her heart to shield it from the sudden fear which brushed it. "Can't your friends—"

HER friends, not his! As though her life were apart from his.

As It Concerns Us

By James E. Edmonds

Most of us must have read, over the week-end, the published report of Minnesota's Republican Stassen's interview with the Kremlin's Communist Stalin. To this writer, it was saddening.

At the best it portrays a well-intentioned old chieftain whose power to decide, act and direct, has been taken over by other, younger, bolder men. At worst—the interview stamps Stalin as now, and earlier at Yalta, an unscrupulous and cynical liar who does not credit the American people with either memory or intelligence.

Stalin told Stassen—"I'm no propagandist—but a business-like man!" Yet for months on end, the Kremlin propagandists have been pouring out diatribe, fact-twisting demagoguery, and venom-rousing invective, all aimed to discredit and weaken the English-speaking peoples. Recently the Americans have been prime target. So, on that score one must view Stalin as having lost his power or his regard for truth.

Stalin told Stassen, in effect—"our different systems. . . can and should, work together to accomplish peace. . . compromise. . . agreement on control of atomic energy." Yet, at Lake Success, in Geneva, and in Moscow, are cumulative evidence of stark refusal by the active Soviet agents to agree to anything which involves real compromise of their first announced views. So again, one must wonder if Stalin is now without power—or without truth.

Regular Luncheon Bridge At The Country Club Is Largely Attended

The regular fortnightly luncheon-bridge at the Washington Country Club on Thursday afternoon brought out 47 ladies to enjoy the tempting two course luncheon served at one o'clock, at the several tables perfectly appointed with arrangements of violets in watergardens, used as decorations.

The club lounge was also effectively enhanced by huge sprigs of apple blossoms, narcissi and other colorful spring flowers, placed at points of vantage throughout.

The beautiful afternoon passed all too soon in the progressive game, which concluded with the awarding of trophies to Mrs. Charles Reinke, who received high score award and Mrs. A. S. Stemler, who was the winner of second prize.

Combined Groups Of Guild Hold Meeting

The evening groups of Westminster Guild of First Presbyterian Church were entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. C. L. Musser, with 16 members present.

Mrs. Charles Reinke, chairman, opened the meeting with Mrs. M. L. Clark following with a Tribute to Mothers, consisting of a group of poems, and the presentation of corsages to Mrs. George A. Robinson, youngest mother, oldest mother, Mrs. George Worrell, and the newest mother, Mrs. John Abernethy. Mrs. Reinke also received a corsage as a courtesy.

The usual reports were heard. Mrs. Abernethy gave a report on the Presbyterian meeting held recently in Columbus. Members brought articles to be packed in a box for overseas relief. Those having articles are to leave them with Mrs. Marguerite Powell.

Miss Marian Osborn sang a solo, "There Comes A Longing For You, Mother," by Omar Wilson, with Mrs. Marian Gage at the piano. The meeting was brought to a close with the repeating of the Lord's Prayer.

During the social hour, tempting refreshments were served by the hostesses, assisted by Mrs. George A. Robinson Jr., Mrs. Hazel Devins, Mrs. Homer Bireley, Mrs. Carl Mallow and Mrs. C. R. Philhower.

Jeffersonville WSCS Meets

The WSCS of the Jeffersonville Methodist Church met in the church basement on Wednesday afternoon for their first meeting during the past two months.

The president, Mrs. Mary Ervin, in opening the meeting read the poem, "Mother," written by Edgar Guest.

Mrs. Eva Owens also read a poem honoring mothers. After prayer by Mrs. Ervin, the usual reports were read and accepted.

The new visiting committee appointed are Mrs. Gertrude Spangler, Mrs. Harsha Walls and Mrs. Cora Little. Mrs. Frances Lock conducted the devotionals, with alternate reading and singing, accompanied by Mrs. Max Morrow at the piano. Mrs. Ervin then introduced Mrs. Mina Morris, who reviewed the book, "The Emperor's Physician," giving a vivid interpretation of the story to a most interested audience.

In honor of "Mothers Day", the hostesses invited the members to the dining room, where beautiful appetizing refreshments, with spring flowers and blue and white tapers, for the serving of a delicious dessert course.

Madison Mills WSCS Meeting

Mrs. M. K. McElvaine of Frankfort was an out of town member present and Mrs. C. M. Wilson of Duluth, Minnesota and Mrs. Walter English, of Seattle, Washington, were out of town guests.

The president, Mrs. Mabel King, opened the meeting with the group singing "Did You Think To Pray?" Mrs. Ethel Wilson conducted the devotionals, using topic for the month, "The Child And His Family." Mrs. Leone Butler led in prayer. Mrs. Christine Summers gave the meditation and her topic was "I Have A Concern With Thee." Mrs. Wilson presented an article, "Children Need Family Life," with several members taking part by giving short readings. The devotional period closed with the song, "Mother's Prayer Has Followed Me."

Mrs. King presided over the business session. Roll call was answered by 17 members, and the usual reports were heard and approved. A note of thanks from Mrs. Freda King was read. Mrs. W. J. Hopkins was reported ill in White Cross Hospital. The society decided to send a box of food overseas for foreign missionary work. Mrs. Blodwin Melvin and Mrs. Hays were appointed to obtain information on adopting a family in Italy or Greece.

A gift auction was held and a nice sum was realized. Mrs. King closed the meeting with a reading, "Reminiscing." Mrs. Nellie Clark and Mrs. Cecil Dawson conducted several contests as entertainment.

Mrs. Hays was assisted in serving tempting refreshments by Mrs. Della Shobe and Mrs. Melvin, during the social hour.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Maude Huffman on June 4 with a luncheon at one o'clock.

Mothers Feted With Tea By Sorority

The Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority members were hostesses to their mothers on Wednesday evening for their annual "Mother-Daughter Tea" held at the American Legion Hall. Miss Jean Burke as chairman, assisted by Mrs. Wayne Bower, Miss Beverly Long, Mrs. Dwight Martin and Miss Betty Chaney, were in charge of the arrangements.

Each mother was presented with a carnation as a favor, as they entered and later invited to a beautifully appointed table, centered with yellow jonquils, the sorority flower, on a mirror and sentinelled with tall yellow tapers in silver candelabra, where the president, Miss Beverly Long, presided.

Miss Burke, in a few well chosen words welcomed the mothers and introduced the officers of the sorority.

In honor of the sorority's 18th birthday anniversary, Miss Norma Burr, read a greeting from the national president. This was followed with a recitation, "Soap" by Micky Ray McCoy, soft shoe tap dance by Marcia Fletcher, buck and wing by Jeri Ann Boylan, recitation, "My Dolly" by Rosalyn Marling, song and dance by Ronald Whitaker, song and dance by Marianne Speakman, recitation, "The Paperhanger," by Jimmy Don Chrisman, a rope dance by Jeri Ann Boylan, and concluded with a song and dance by Carolyn Gault.

A color scheme of pink and green were carried out in the decorations on the table holding the lovely gifts, with huge bows arranged at the corners of the table, centered with a water-garden of spring flowers.

Contests provided ample diversion for the evening, with prizes awarded Mrs. Doris Bower, Miss Betty Chaney and Miss Dixie Lou Graves.

The gifts presented the honor guests were opened and graciously acknowledged.

A dainty dessert course was served to complete a most pleasant period.

Guests were Mrs. Wayne Bower, Mrs. Dwight Martin, Mrs. Russell Lanman, Mrs. Donna Zimmerman, Mrs. Lucy Harrop, Mrs. Charles Burke, Misses Betty Chaney, Betty Long, Dixie Lou Graves, Norma Burr, Beverly Long, and Patsy Long.

The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. Walter Engle.

Recent Bride Complimented With Shower

'Poverty Supper' Is Enjoyed By Class

Mrs. Rebecca Armbrust, assisted by Mrs. Clara Campbell, was hostess to the Gleaners Class of McNair Church at her home Thursday evening at her home, for a "Poverty Supper," preceding the meeting. The table, seating the group was lighted with candles and kerosene lamps, covered with red oilcloth, depicting a "hard times" surrounding, and also in the food served.

Following the supper hour, a business meeting in charge of the president, was held with Mrs. Roy Hays conducting the devotional period. Roll call was answered by 16 members and one guest was included.

Plans were made by the class to serve lunch at the June consignment sale. Usual reports were given and the meeting was brought to a close.

During the social hour, the hostesses provided contests with prizes awarded in these to Mrs. John Glenn, Mrs. Lela Thompson and Mrs. Carrie Lydy, who in turn presented their prizes to Mrs. Lola Garrett, a member who was a recent bride. She also received a beautiful lamp as a gift from the class. Mrs. Garrett graciously responded. Rebecca Jane Armbrust very fittingly sang "The Old Lamp Lighter" to close the social hour, with Mrs. Clifford Foster at the piano.

Vet Wives Make Best of Life In Campus Trailer 'Hatchery'

By HAL BOYLE

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., May 9.—(P)—The other wives at "the hatchery"—campus nickname of Indiana University's trailer home community for war vets—just couldn't understand the viewpoint of little Mrs. Vivian Boling.

"I wish George would stay for a year of graduate work after getting his degree," she said. Wondering the word swept through the other remodeled wartime trailers, lined up in neat rows by the hundreds west of the University stadium, "Vivian wants George to stay another year."

Most of their wives, particularly those with children, want to move on as soon as the family head wins his sheepskin. They want to leave their cramped quarters and get started somewhere in new homes.

Vivian—she is pretty and red-haired and her husband calls her

"Curley"—is an exception. Life is crowded in their small $25-a-month trailer but it has been happy.

"And just the thought of trying to find another place to live," sighed Curley. Like the wives of many veterans she has an outside job to help eke the government educational allowance of $90 a month. She doesn't mind working.

Most veterans to remain in school have had to borrow from relatives or spend their wartime savings.

Curley's husband, a journalism student who worked in Gary steel mills before spending 18 months in the Pacific, is 29. He's anxious to get started in a newspaper career.

So his pal Joe Gingery, 24, Indianapolis, a former airforce gunner in the European theater, who shares a $22.50 trailer with his wife, Parrela, and their three children. Nelson is 4 years old and the twins, Walter (Red) and Joe (Blue) are two. Walter is dressed in red and little Joe in blue so each can tell himself from the other.

The three Gingery children swarm over the 18-by-foot trailer like a trio of healthy, husky bear cubs. Their mother, a large friendly girl of placid temperament, has to pack them off to the community nursery when she wants to do housecleaning.

"It makes a big difference in my wife's disposition whether the kids get to nursery school or not," grinned Joe.

Pamela cooks on a small gasoline stove, finds housework something of a chore because the trailers have no running water. It has to be packed about 75 feet from a community outdoor faucet. The families also must use community laundry and toilet facilities.

"I don't mind carrying the water in," said Pamela, "but I do get tired of having to carry it back out after housecleaning just to throw it away."

Pamela is studying a college course on "personal adjustment and family living." She likes it, and just laughed when I asked her if she didn't think she already knew more about the subject than the professor.

She said the wives get along well and help each other in many ways. "I feel I can stick it out until my husband gets through college," she said. The Gingerys and Boling's said they knew of only one veteran and his wife who had failed to stay until the husband completed his university work.

Most veterans are pretty handy men around the trailer and pitch in and help with the dishes, but one wife complained wryly: "It's funny how many classes they suddenly discover they have to go to when something's got to be done around the house."

"But Joe kept the babies once when I went home for a visit," said Pamela, "and everybody thought he was a wonderful husband."

"You didn't think so," Joe said, "when you got back and saw what the trailer looked like."

Brazil Outlaws Communists

Police and Troops Aid in Crackdown

RIO DE JANEIRO, May 9.—(P)—The Brazilian government cracked down hard on the communist party today, with federal police and troops padlocking 445 communist clubs or cells to enforce a decision by the supreme electoral tribunal, outlawing the party in Brazil.

The tribunal approved, by a 3 to 2 vote last night, a government petition asking that the Brazilian communist party—one of the largest in the western hemisphere—be declared illegal and closed. In the last election, in January, the party polled about 800,000 votes.

It elected 17 deputies and one senator in the federal congress, 18 members of this capital's 50-member city council, 60 members of various state legislatures and helped to elect the governors of eight Brazilian states.

The senator, Luis Carlos Prestes, who is secretary general of the Brazilian communist party, cabled all the party's branches immediately after yesterday's decision, ordering them to obey the verdict calmly. He said the decision would be appealed to the Brazilian supreme court and announced that the party's national convention, scheduled for May 25 in Rio, had been postponed indefinitely.

But even as the tribunal's judgment was being announced the communists suffered another stiff blow. President Eurico Gaspar Dutra suspended the communist-supported Brazil workers confederation and all labor unions affiliated with it for a period of six months.

The presidential decree accused the suspended unions of "provoking among the workers frictions and agitations which spread themselves harmfully to production centers, disturbing the workers' output and order."

Government intervenors are to be chosen to administer the unions pending new labor elections.

'BIG FOUR' MOSCOW ISSUES EXPLAINED BY MARSHALL

IN A FRANK REPORT ON THE MOSCOW CONFERENCE, Secretary of State George C. Marshall outlined the vital issues discussed by the "Big Four." On the positive side, as indicated on the map, the Foreign Ministers agreed to give further study to all Austrian questions, including the determination of German assets in that country. They agreed to study possible limitation of occupation forces in Germany, and to exchange information in all zones. The reparations question proved stubborn, with disagreement also barring the economic and political unity of Germany. There was a three to one split against the incorporation of the Saar into France and a refusal by the Western bloc to approve the new Polish frontier. The conference was credited with at least clearing the air for the forthcoming November parley. (International)

TEST NEW ANTI-FOG LIGHT SYSTEM AT LANDING FIELD

PREPARING THE WORLD'S BRIGHTEST LIGHT for a test at Cleveland Municipal Airport, W. A. Pennow, aviation lighting engineer for Westinghouse, touches a lamp tube capable of producing, with the aid of a reflector, more than three billion candlepower of light. The artist's drawing shows how the all-weather lighting system, designed to conquer fog, will appear from the air. As the plane at right approaches for a landing, the pilot will see the brilliant flash of 72 approach lights, which extend almost two-thirds of a mile from the runway. These lightning-like flashes penetrate for 1,000 feet, even under "zero-zero" weather conditions, thus guiding the plane safely to its runway. Colored lights serve as traffic indicators. New Approach On Weather To Assist Farmers

Much Temperature Variance Over Small Areas

A new approach to the farmer's problem of weather is rapidly gaining headway among the experts, but the new discovery probably would not help much under present conditions of abnormally wet weather in Fayette and other counties.

Weather, it has been discovered, is a small package deal. It has a microscopic dimension, and there are highly important variations of temperature on a single parcel of land. The United States Weather Bureau has found that instead of coming in large chunks, 25 or more miles square weather varies tremendously at points only a few hundred feet apart.

The answer to the problem, then, is individual weather studies for each farm. Such investigations have been conducted on farms in Kittitas County, Washington; the Imperial Valley, California; and the Columbia River Basin, Washington, according to the lead article in the May issue of "Country Gentleman."

The Weather Bureau findings in Kittitas County tell the story. The Bureau set up recording stations at 35 points in an area of 32,000 acres. Temperature readings were taken through April and May for five successive years. Within that 32,000 acres there were two places (where the Bureau had set up recording stations) where the last killing frost came on April 18; there were five where it came between April 19 and 24; six, between April 25 and May 1; six, between May 2 and 10; three, between May 11 and 15, and thirteen places where the last killing frost came as late as May 16 and 24.

What the Weather Bureau hopes to do is to help the individual farmer determine how much parcel of his land will behave under any weather situation important to his crops. It would provide a weather calendar for his farm so that he can adjust his planting dates, or pick such crops, that his weather risk would be cut to a minimum.

At present, the men, equipment and funds for an effective nationwide microscopic service to farmers are lacking. To bring it about the farmer must request agricultural weather service along these lines, first through his county then in the Bureau itself, and finally in congress.

American Merchant Of London Is Dead

LONDON, May 9—(AP)—H. Gordon Selfridge, Wisconsin-born founder of a London merchandising fortune, died today at his home. He was 83.

Selfridge introduced many American merchandising methods to London.

He began his career at the age of 15 with the firm that was to become Marshall Field's. He obtained an interest in the business and at 39 had accumulated a fortune so that he could retire in 1903 and pursue his hobbies, travelling, collecting art objects and reading.

In 1909, however, he established the first department store in Europe - - Selfridge's on Oxford Street, London, and soon became known as "The Marshall Field of England."

Church Decline Is Due To Auto

The transition of rural life has accounted for the decline in rural church attendance, the members of the Upper Paint Farm Bureau Council No. 3 decided at a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Denen.

The discussion, which was led by Howard Looker, advisory guard, brought out the idea that the rural church is being abandoned for the village church, now more available with advent of the automobile.

During the meeting, a poll was taken of the type of program desired by the members of the council on the new Farm Bureau station which will begin operation soon. The consensus seemed to show that the majority of the members wanted news programs or farm programs.

Frank L. Green was appointed discussion chairman for the next meeting, which will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Even Thomas.

Books Added To Library Here

Valuable Information For Everyone

Information on social security benefits and buying insurance policies is contained in the book "How to Buy Insurance," by Philip Gordis, recently acquired by the Carnegie Public Library, here said Miss Elizabeth Johnson, head librarian.

"With this book at hand," said Miss Johnson, "one need no longer be confused by all the 'small type' in insurance forms, nor will it be assumed that this small type is unimportant."

The principal parts of the book cover insurance on personal property, automobiles and homes. There are also sections covering National Service Life Insurance, accident and health insurance. Each part is arranged so that all pertinent information is given in one place in compact, understandable form, said Miss Johnson.

There is also advice about purchasing by mail, and in the appendices, there are lists of the insurance companies which the author believes offer the most advantageous policies in each state.

Gordis has had wide experience in the insurance field, says the Norton Publishing Company, the firm which printed the book, and "has no axe to grind." The book is written in the interest of the consumer only, said the firm.

Union Welfare Scheme Balked

WASHINGTON, May 9—(AP)—

The senate has voted a ban on union controlled health and welfare funds and the involuntary check-off on union dues.

Adoption of the ban as an amendment to pending general labor legislation was a victory for Senator Taft (R-Ohio) after a sharp reversal yesterday when the senate killed, 44 to 43, a Taft-backed proposal to forbid industry-wide bargaining.

Today's amendment also outlaws extortion and attempts by unions to "shake down" employers.

It prohibits all health and welfare funds which are administered solely by unions. The Hartley bill already passed by the house has a similar provision.

Reds Dropped into Seventh Place By Giants' Eighth Inning Rally

(By The Associated Press)

Texas Grady Hatton, sophomore third baseman, was the unhappiest of the lot today as the Cincinnati Reds returned to Crosley Field today after a rain-soaked tour of the National League's eastern division.

Hatton, a top notch candidate for rookie-of-the-year award in 1946, hasn't collected a base hit in 15 times at bat. In four games his batting average has skidded from .280 to .230.

He failed to get a hit in four trips yesterday as the New York Giants kicked the Reds back into seventh place, 7-4, in a game decided in the eighth inning when the Gothamites chased Joe Beggs with a three-run outburst.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, May 9—(P)—Two notes from the south: One says that the North Carolina Collegiate Big Four, known as the "Ration League" when it was formed in 1943, has been called the hottest college loop in the country by major league scouts. Its members are North Carolina, N. C. State, Duke and Wake Forest, all noted producers of big league talent. Another asks how come Garland Braxton, who had been managing an independent club and reputedly bird-dogging for the Yankees, suddenly took over the reins at Wake Forest. The Yanks are supposed to have several prospects absorbing higher education there.

Two Ball Games And Golf Match Here Next Week

Given a little cooperation by the Weatherman, the Washington C. H. High School athletics today are facing some busy days on the diamond and links.

Monday afternoon, the baseball teams is to have a chance to get revenge from the Circleville Tigers when they play at Wilson Field here.

The following day, they will have a chance to even the score with London in a game that also is to be played here.

Wednesday, the golf team, unbeaten in two matches, will take on the London boys on the Country Club course.

The Blue Lion baseball team was beaten by both Circleville and London when they played on their lots. Now, the boys of WHS are to get return games on their home field.

Some changes have been made in the lineup since that first game with Leesburg's Fairfield school here. Just what the batting order will be or who will be in uniform for next week's two games has not been announced by coaches Fred Pierson and Joe Waddell.

The golf team made up of Don Denton, Dick Korn, Bob Craig and Dick O'Brien has beaten the teams representing London and Circleville.

The only out-of-town sports activity booked for the WHS Athletics next week is the Upper Arlington Relays. Coach Steve Lewis, whose thimble track field performers tied for second place with Wilmington in the annual SCO meet here Wednesday, has hopes for taking the whole squad to Upper Arlington but plans to enter only those boys who appear to have a chance to get in on the awards.

The entire WHS coaching staff of three is spending the week end at the Ohio State University football clinic.

WHS Coaches Attend Clinic On Football at Ohio State

Washington C. H. High School's three-man coaching staff today was in Columbus for Ohio State University's two-day football clinic to see what they can see and bring back for the improvement of the Blue Lion strategy next fall.

Fred Pierson, head football coach at WHS, Steve Lewis assistant football coach and head basketball coach, and Joe Waddell, who coaches both football and basketball in the junior high school, left early Friday morning with the avowed intention of staying right on through until the end Saturday night.

Coach Wesley Fesler, the new mentor of the Bucks, who will put his 1947 hopefuls on display Saturday in an intra-squad game at 3 P. M., said 489 coaches had registered for the clinic in which he will tear his offense apart, show what makes it click and then put it back together again.

"This is the biggest clinic, by official count, ever sponsored by Ohio State," Fesler said. "We're going to tell the visiting coaches all we know about our offense and defense."

Friday's program calls for sessions on the unbalanced T-formation offense, protecting runners from the rear, line play, backfield play, and the 5-4-2 defense.

Saturday brings up a tackle drill, fatigue test, rules discussion by E. C. Kreiger, the spread punt formation, a discussion of new football thoughts for 1947, and the annual clinic game.

Fesler has split his squad into "red" and "white" divisions for the game, with 38 players, including 18 lettermen, on the red outfit, and 44 players, with 10 lettermen, on the whites.

John Stungis, 1943 and 1946 letterman, and freshman John Chaney will do the punting for both teams, as well as kicking off and any necessary placekicking.

Several lettermen will not see action. George Spencer, regular quarterback; Alex Verdova, halfback, and fullback Pete Perini are on the baseball team; Jerry Krall is recovering from an operation, and Ollie Cline is still in service. All five are slated to be on the varsity in the fall, however.

Good Hope Teams Try-outs Sunday

Rained out last Sunday almost before they had got settled on the field, Good Hope's baseball hopefuls today were looking forward to another try-out next Sunday at the Wayne Township capital.

Tommy Smalley, the headman of the Good Hope team, said last Sunday's session came to such an early and abrupt end that next Sunday's workout would have to start from scratch. However, he added, "we'll have to get right down to the business of selecting the framework of this season's team" because the time for starting play is drawing near.

About half of last year's team is ready to take up play again this year, Tommy said. The Caps will have to be filled in from newcomers.

Several games already have been booked, Smalley said.

No Hitter Pitched

MILFORD, Del., May 9—(P)—Rookie Bob Brake, 19-year-old righthander of the Milford Red Sox of the class D Eastern Shore baseball league, pitched a no-hitter here last night to defeat the Dover (Del.) Phillies, 8-0, in the season's opener for both clubs.

Coon Dog Field Trial Opener Is To Be Held Here Sunday

Everything was all set today for the opening Sunday of the coon dog field season here.

The Fayette County Coon Hunters Association, for several years the pace-setting conservation organization in the county, has completed arrangements for the inaugural event on the Johnson and Kyle farm about a mile north of Buena Vista.

The first heat is scheduled at noon from the crossroads and follow a winding course about seven furlongs long to the finish in the woods on the banks of Rattlesnake Creek near the bridge.

About 100 dogs are expected to compete for the $150 in prize money. There are no restrictions on the entries, an association spokesman said. Of the prize money, $50 has been set aside for the first tree and a like amount for the first line, and $25 each has been hung up for the second tree and second line.

Coon dog field trials not only fill the closed season gap for coon dog owners who take their sport in the orthodox manner during the open season, but are a special type of field sport which has no parallel, but is best described as combining the excitement of fox hunting and horse racing.

Racial Row In Baseball All Confused

NEW YORK, May 9—(P)—National baseball League President Ford Frick said last night he was told by owner Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals the team had planned, but was talked out of, a strike against Brooklyn's Jackie Robinson, Negro first baseman. This brought quick denials both from Breadon and Manager Eddie Dyer of the Cardinals.

Frick, in a telephone conversation with the Associated Press said that Breadon came to New York last week and informed him that he understood there was a movement among the Cardinals to strike in protest during their just concluded series with the Dodgers if Robinson was in the lineup.

Lockland Co. Lowest Bidder On Road Jobs

Three Projects in Fayette County Among Forty

L. P. Covett Co., Lockland, had the lowest bid of several placed on three state highway projects in Fayette County, the bid being $25,751.19. The estimated cost of the three projects was $30,155.

The bids were part of 136 bids received on 40 projects in the state. Three bids out of the total were rejected because they were more than four percent over the state's estimate and three projects are to be readvertised.

The three projects in Fayette County, which are to be completed this summer, are: Paint Township, resurfacing and widening brick paving on Route 38 from Bloomingburg to the State Road; Surface treating the Good Hope road south of Good Hope, and the Creamer road in Jefferson Township.

It is understood the brick portion of 38 north of Bloomingburg, on the Bloomingburg and Sedalia road, is to be widened two feet on each side and the entire width resurfaced.

The brick were laid on sand, and the paving, the first of its kind in Fayette County, has withstood traffic remarkably well.

Two other sections of brick road, that are on the Leesburg road, each some two miles in extent, were resurfaced a number of years ago and have withstood heavy traffic remarkably well. On the Leesburg and Chillicothe roads, the brick had been laid on a concrete base.

Sabina Class To Give Play Friday, May 16

"Ever Since Eve," a comedy of life among the teen-agers, will be presented by the senior class of Sabina High School at the high school auditorium there at 8 P. M. May 16.

The story concerns the editor and business manager of a high school paper who find themselves beset with a career girl who wants to be assistant editor. The plot thickens when they all get the measles, are involved in an illegal pinball game and almost bankrupt the paper.

Cast for the performance is as follows: Mrs. Clover, the editor's mother, is played by Emma Lee Shown; Johnny Clover, the editor, is played by Louie Poole; Susan Blake, the enthusiastic career girl, by Charlotte Sheley; Spud Erwin, the business manager of the paper, by Joe Childress; Betsey Erwin, his loquacious younger sister, by Elnoma Newman; Martha Willard, the pretty journalism teacher, by Marcella Cline; Officer Cappy Simmons, a soft-hearted cop, by Joe Denehy; Henry Quinn the young high school principal, by Dave Morris; and Lucybell Lee, a Southern vamp, by Mary Lou VanPelt.

Others in the cast are Dana Gallagher who plays Preston Hughes; Bob Morrow, who plays harassed father; Bob Haines, Leo Stanforth, Ron Huffman and Jack Burris, who plays a crew of husky basketball players.

Tickets for the performance are on sale at the Sabina High School.

Funeral Services Held For Jacob Washington

Funeral services for Jacob Washington were held at 2 P. M. Thursday at the Gerstner Funeral Home.

Rev. H. C. Martin, pastor of the Jehovah's Witness Church in Dayton, was in charge of the services. He read the scriptures and delivered a sermon. He was assisted by Rev. William Coleman, pastor of the Jehovah's Witness Church of Greenfield. Rev. Coleman offered prayer and read the memoir.

Pallbearers were Melvin Jacobs, Joseph Dugger, Russell Bates, Gilbert Ames, Virgil Harris and Charles Valentine.

Burial was made in the family lot in Bloomingburg Cemetery.
